Ralph Fiennes and Lord Voldemort's Costume

The 43-year-old British actor has accepted the role of Lord Voldemort in the upcoming "Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire" after he has seen the sketches of the costume designed for the character.

Ralph Fiennes appears to be thrilled with his role in the upcoming "Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire", directed by Mike Newell. The "Red Dragon" star, who was not very familiar with the Harry Potter series (Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone, Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets, Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban) admitted that he was persuaded to accept the role of Lord Voldemort after having seen the drawings for the costume. "I wrestled with it a bit because I didn't know the world of Harry Potter. Then after thinking about it I just thought it was a full-on, meaty villain, baddy. "I've done realistic villains but something in that fantastical realm, children's realm, the dark Lord; I hadn't really done that before", Fiennes said "When I saw some pictures that they drew for the look (of the character) that's when I took the bait. I thought it looked really cool. I think I'm doing the next one where I have a big fight with DUMBLEDORE", the British actor added. During the fourth summer and the following year at Hogwarts, the main events students have to prepare for are Quidditch World Cup and the Triwizard Tournament. The competitors are selected by the goblet of fire, which this year makes a very surprising announcement: Hogwarts will have two representatives in the tournament, including Harry Potter! However, Voldemort's Death Eaters are gaining strength and even creating the Dark Mark giving evidence that the Dark Lord is ready to rise again. Harry tries to rise to the challenge for the Tri Wizard Tournament while keeping up with school.
