

11 October 2005

By: Mihaela Stroia, Entertainment Editor

Renee Zellweger Wants to Adopt

"Renee still has to meet the same ten conditions as everybody else," and adoption agent said

Following Angelina Jolie's example, actress Renee Zellweger wants to adopt an orphan baby, because she feels too lonely after splitting up with her husband and she doesn't know if she will have a child of her own some day. As it was rumored weeks ago, Renee Zellweger split up with Kenny Chesney because he didn't want children. Apparently, the 36-year-old actress is said to have mentioned Chesney's reluctance to become a dad, even though "her biological clock is ticking loudly". According to a source quoted by Britain's The Sun newspaper, "she's an old-fashioned girl and wanted to start a family as soon as the wedding dress was in the wardrobe. She thought Kenny felt the same way, but it didn't take her long to realize the dream was over." And now, it seems that Renee has already asked for Angelina Jolie's advice on the matter, considering the fact that the fellow actress has some serious experience with her two adopted children, Maddox, 3, and Zahara, eight months. A source at the country's state-run adoption agency stated: "Renee still has to meet the same ten conditions as everybody else. The main two are that she's financially secure and law-abiding."