Ricky Martin Considers Adoption

Martin pleads against the trafficking of children into slavery and prostitution

Latin singer Ricky Martin praised the Indian government efforts to stop child trafficking and revealed he considers adopting a child sometime in the future. Martin was in Scotland, fighting against the trafficking of children into slavery and prostitution, and declared he sponsors four girls in India. He says: "Because of trafficking, the adoption of children to foreigners is not legal in India. They control adoption because of the fear of child trafficking, which I think is brilliant of the Indian government. But why not? Maybe some day I will adopt a child." The singer has also confessed he joined this program because he was tired of "living la vida loca". "The crazy thing is nobody else could tell that I was bored. Everybody thought I was having a great time," says Martin, quoted by the Scottish Daily Record. "I was really concerned about that. I thought, wait a minute; I'm faking my emotion. Everything had become automatic and false," Ricky added.
