Ricky Martin Shows Nude Footage of Himself During Concert

And where was I when such a wonderful thing was happening???

Ricky Martin's performances are, as a rule, raunchy and fiery. Despite the many rumors that he is gay, this is one of the few artists of our times (male ones, of course) who manage to emanate that much sexuality and raw masculinity in his shows. Every move, every word that comes out of his mouth seems sexually charged and maybe this is precisely that which made him one of the best-sold Latino performers (if not actually the best). Now, you can add another thing on your list of expectations when you go to a Ricky concert: nudity. No, strike that and change it to: nude images of himself. Talk about spicing it up! Talk about steaming the place up! If anyone can do this, then Ricky Martin is the man! Various media outlets reported overnight that the bon-bon star was performing at a Connecticut casino when nude footage of himself began to play on the widescreen monitors in the venue. 'The singer shocked the crowd at his concert on Saturday night with sexy video clips showing him in the buff, his private parts barely concealed', one of the major US newspapers wrote. Apparently, there was no reason given for the introduction of such images into the show but, on the other hand, I doubt an explanation was really that necessary. But that was not all that Ricky did that night to 'shock' the members of the audience: according to various sources he was also experiencing a very bad case of foul mouth, 'horrifying' his fans by uttering the F-word more than once. Cue to the source: 'He later dropped the F-bomb a couple of times during his onstage patter'. Well, I dare say, while this is a rather unusual behavior for Ricky, maybe we shouldn't pretend that it is something that out of the ordinary. In what concerns the nude videos and images of Ricky, neither the casino owners nor the singer's publicist were immediately available for comment. Nevertheless, the question is still standing: where was I when all this was going down? Where were you? How come no one has photos of this?
