

12 October 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Sarah Michelle Gellar Will NOT Take That Bra Off!

The actress says that she won't strip for her next movie

Many waited the day in which they were to see Buffy's breasts for the first time. Last year, rumor had it that Gellar was eager to strip in front of the camera before she reached 30, to get rid of her teen image the 'Vampire Slayer' hit series created. According to a very recent interview, it seems the world still has to wait to see it happen because the actress has absolutely no intention of taking off her clothes. It does not represent her, so she won't do it, Sarah says. But the funniest part is that she learned about her so-called intention of stripping from her personal trainer. 'My trainer said to me a few weeks ago, "So, we've got to start getting you into shape for this topless scene". And I was like, "I'm sorry, the what?" And he said, "I read somewhere you said you really want to take your top off in a movie" And I said, "OK, first of all, who would actually say, "You know what, in my next job, I really want to take my top off""? Second of all, to know me is to know that's not true', Contactmusic quoted Sarah as saying. Sadly, this is true. Gellar wants to really establish herself as a serious actress so, in her book, that means no breast-revealing scene, people... Unless it's for Freddie, that's understood of course.