

18 December 2005

By: Simona Gherman, Entertainment Editor

Scarlett Johansson's Problem - Height

"Is that Scarlett Johansson? Oh my God, she's so short!"

The actress who doesn't care about the Hollywood fashion that requests women to be as thin as possible has, apparently, a problem though: she is being paranoid about her height. At least that's what she confessed, speaking to the New York Post: "One time I was in a ladies room. In the stall. And two women were talking at the sink. One said: "Is that Scarlett Johansson? Oh my God, she's so short!" I began to get a complex. Because I was also in a restaurant in New York and a waiter said how short I was. I told him: 'Good things come in small packages.'" Well, if she ever worries too much about her height (5' 4" or 1.63m), Scarlett may at any time apply her favorite therapy: red lipstick. The 'Lost in Translation' star has recently confessed that, whenever she's feeling lost in sadness, she uses a trick that proved efficient so far. "If I am feeling glum... I like to apply red lipstick; then, for the whole day I feel better," she revealed.