

19 October 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Screech Has Sex for Money

Dustin Diamond cashes in on the sex tape he made four years ago

Although the stand up comedian and once television star initially said he would take the 'Sultan of Sleaze', David Hans Schmidt, to court for making his sex tape public, he is now more content with the way things eventually turned out. Dustin Diamond, or the geeky guy, Screech, from 'Saved by the Bell' said in a recent interview that that the 40-minute film of him having sex with two women was never meant to go public. The tape was made four years ago and it was supposed to be a joke that he and some of his friends often did. Unfortunately, or not, it got leaked on the Internet and now the entire world will see him in the buff and doing his stuff (plus a 'Dirty Sanchez'), come November 6th. 'I'm not an adult actor. I did something stupid in private', Diamond told 'Us Weekly' a while ago. At the same time, he did not seem at all upset with the man who orchestrated the sale of the tape (the very same who brought 'One Night in Paris' to the light); on the contrary, one could say: 'I tip my hat to the guy... if someone has a tape out there, they gotta watch out 'cuz chances are he's gonna get a hold of it... the Sultan of Sleaze has done it again and I got caught with my hand in the cookie jar', he said. The conclusion that Screech reached (probably in his thirst for money, as he is known to be broke) is that, instead of spending thousands of dollars (that he doesn't have) to ban the tape from appearing on the market or to find the person responsible of leaking it, he might as well make some bucks on the side. God knows that he needs them! 'I thought, I can spend a fortune fighting this or I can try and make a fortune. Let's just say, if I were a small man, it would be worse', he told the reporter from 'Us'. So, watch out: 'Saved by the Smell' drops on November 6th and Screech could really use the money!