

27 October 2006

By: Robert Matei, Gaming News Editor

Serial Killers and Giant Penises in Postal 3

Vince Desi playing Krotchy

Postal 3, set to be released in late 2008, is developed by Running With Scissors, as fans probably already know. The company's CEO is Vince Desi. Looks like he will have a cameo appearance in the upcoming game. As Vince Desi was filming his cameo, Game Set Watch managed to obtain a set of pictures of him playing his role. I don't know what and how they did, but the paparazzo's photographed Vince Desi in a penis-suit. According to Joystick gaming news site, Vince Desi will be playing Krotchy, a giant penis. Is that what they use the Source Engine for? Maybe if we were talking about female body parts they would have developed an entirely different engine. Already, the Postal series have been considered controversial and many have tried to censor it, including Senator Joe Lieberman, but as far as I know, Postal is still on the market. I wonder what Jack Thompson is doing? Or is he only interested in Take-Two and Rockstar games? Furthermore, Running With Scissors announced that a film adaptation of the game series will be launched, most probably in 2007. The first Postal game was released back in 1997 and was published by Ripcord games. Initially, the United States Postal Service filed a trademark lawsuit against the game, but after 6 years, the lawsuit was dismissed.