

17 November 2008

By: Traian Teglet, Technology News Editor

Inside SmoothCreations' new Prophet i7 desktop tweaktown

SmoothCreations Prophet i7 to Show What the Core i7 Is Made Of

The latest in computing technology with a custom painted desktop rig

Extreme computer enthusiasts can always count on custom PC makers, such as SmoothCreations, to offer them the most powerful desktop or portable computer systems on the market. However, with SmoothCreations, things are a bit different, as users not only receive the latest in computing technology, but they also get the chance to pride themselves on having the most uniquely designed PCs on the market. This is also the case with the company's latest gaming rig, the Prophet i7, which, as the system's name might indicate, is built on Intel's yet-to-be announced Core i7 processors. The Nehalem-based processors are but one of the many features that have been built in the new Prophet i7, so users can be certain that what they'll get will be a PC that has all chances of obliterating the competition. "The Prophet i7 Portable design makes it easy to go to those LAN parties without having to lug heavy pc equipment around," said Mario Gastelum, Product Marketing. Aside from the already mentioned Intel Core i7 processors, the new Prophet i7 desktop gaming rig from SmoothCreations comes to provide support for both ATI's CrossFireX and NVIDIA's SLI multi-GPU technologies. This is why users are enabled to opt for a choice of a Diamond Radeon HD 4870 or HD 4870 X2, or a BFG GeForce GTX 280 or GTX 260 in SLI or Triple SLI. If that isn't enough to satisfy your high-performance cravings, then we should also mention the maximum 12GB of Corsair DDR3 memory, 1TB hard drives and a customized Logitech G15 keyboard and G5 mouse. All of the above come placed on one of MSI's latest X58 motherboards and powered by your choice of a 700W, 900W or 1100W Tagan modular power supply. Obviously, all that power requires some serious cooling, which is why SmoothCreations has equipped its latest desktop gaming rig with a liquid cooling system, coming to deal with high-end processors and graphics cards. The system is far from what most will consider cheap, but then again, if you are even remotely considering going for the Prophet i7, you are probably not used to standard PC configurations. With a starting price point of $1,995, the Prophet i7 is now available for delivery.