

11 May 2007

By: Elena Balan, Communications News Editor

Spider-Man 3-the mobile phone game
Spider-Man 3 website

Sony Brings 14 New Mobile Games

New challenges from Sony

Sony Pictures Television will offer 14 new game titles for the mobile phone users living in US. Some of them deserve the waiting, while others fail to bring reasons for any high expectations. One title from the list of games has already been released. We're talking about Spider-Man 3, which has been out for all mobile gamers since May 4th, when the movie was also released. The game brings the novelty of dressing Spider-Man in his newly discovered black suit that gives him extra powers. Actually, this is a 2D side-scrolling game that is capable of maintaining the action at an intense level in the fight against villains. Spider-Man Puzzle is another game title that is expected to be launched. It proves to be challenging in a less aggressive way, as the player only has to match three symbols in order to advance along a path. God of War is one of the most expected titles from those announced for release. This game is actually an adaptation of the Playstation 2 hit, bearing the same name. It features Kratos, who is an Olympian accused of betrayal against its people in his conquest for war. He must now do all his best in order to win back their confidence. The other games announced are less impressive. Snoop Dogg Boxing brings users the occasion of putting several hip-hop performers in the boxing ring and punching the way to victory. According to some game critics, this is not very entertaining, neither too original. Other titles include Jeopardy!, Jump That Car and Snoop Dogg Cruisin'. For now, the games have been announced only for people living in the US, with no promises for a European release.