

9 June 2005

By:

Sony Ericsson K750i, a photographer's phone

With a 2MP camera

Sony Ericsson announced yesterday the commercial launch of the K750i model. The phone will be available in stores starting with June 9. K750i has a 2MP digital camera which is capable of taking images with excellent color accuracy, resulting in a good quality prints. Connectivity has not been forgotten, and the generous amount of memory allows the user to store a large number of photos. Considering that 65% of the Sony Ericsson's customers choose phone models fitted with digital cameras, it's easy to understand why the company's experts are focusing on improving the picture taking capabilities. The phone features a 4X digital zoom, red eye removal function and autofocus. The images can be transmitted through Bluetooth, infrared connection or through the 64MB Memory Stick Duo memory card. K750i also has a USB port which allows the connection to a PC, transforming the phone into a multimedia player.