

22 October 2008

By: Cosmin Vasile, Communications News Editor

T-Mobile G1 front closed
T-Mobile

The Wait Is Over: T-Mobile's G1 Available Starting Today

Only for selected markets

T-Mobile USA just announced the national availability of the highly anticipated T-Mobile G1 with Google, the first Android-powered mobile phone. The T-Mobile G1 combines full touch-screen functionality and a QWERTY keyboard with a rich mobile Web experience, dozens of Android Market applications, and popular Google products that millions have enjoyed on the desktop, including Google Maps Street View, Gmail, YouTube and others.

Beginning today, consumers can purchase the phone in select retail stores across the country and online here.

With a fun and intuitive user interface and one-touch access to Google Search, the T-Mobile G1 is the first phone to offer access to Android Market, which hosts unique applications and mashups of existing and new services from developers around the world. Customers can find and download a wide range of innovative applications starting from games to social networking and on-the-go shopping to personalize their phone and enhance their mobile lifestyle. Even better, for a limited time, the dozens of applications available on Android Market are available free-of-charge for T-Mobile G1 users.

Customers can purchase and carry away the T-Mobile G1 at T-Mobile retail stores and select third-party stores in major cities where T-Mobile's 3G service is currently available (95 major cities across top population centers). All T-Mobile stores across the country will have demonstration devices on-hand and can assist customers with ordering the device for delivery at a later date.

T-Mobile has established a collaborative online forum dedicated to the T-Mobile G1 where customers can ask questions, share tips and get helpful information. All T-Mobile retail stores will open early at 8 a.m. on Oct. 22 to give everyone the chance to experience and purchase or order the T-Mobile G1.

T-Mobile G1 experts will be on-hand at retail stores to demonstrate the phone and answer any question.