The Da Vinci Code Cheats and Unlockables

Tom Hanks needs a hand?

Dan Brown's novel The Da Vinci Code really stirred the waters for the whole world. Not only did the book quickly become a bestseller and the movie starring Tom Hanks got on the lips of all people, but also the gaming industry benefited from this. Such a plot was bound to create the setting for an entertaining adventure. The only difference between the game's storyline and the book and movie is the absence of the Oscar winner actor Tom Hanks. The game also brings some additional content (you'll have a small puzzling surprise even if you enter the official site, not to mention the game) to the story to pad up the adventure.

Although the variety of the puzzles is satisfactory, The Da Vinci Code can't really be considered a must have adventure game, but the soundtrack surely makes you believe that. For those of you that already got the game, don't worry, it will prove an appealing experience and if by any chance you need a little help, check up on the following cheats.

The developers thought of it all and made your little cheating get a little easier than usually.

All you need to do is choose "Codes" from the "Options" menu and then enter the desired code.

Vitruvian Man - enables God mode. You'll have to enter it for both Robert and Sophie as the game ends if either one of them dies.

Sacred Feminine - doubles the amount of health for your character.

Phillips Exeter - enables one hit fist kill (is Robert a deadly character or what?)

Royal Holloway - enables one hit weapon kill (told you he was lethal)

Clos Luce 1519 - enables you to select the level.

Unlockables Apocrypha - unlocks all visual database entries. Et in Arcadia ego - unlocks every bonus there is to the game: all levels (including the MOX Louvre level and the MOX Rosslyn level), all Visual Database entries, the music Orrery, all concept art in Rosslyn, all Louvre paintings that are displayed in the substitution puzzles and all anagram puzzles in Rosslyn.

Some Puzzle Walkthroughs

Table of Chemicals Answer At the table with the chemicals to get your mixture you'll want 1 shot of Chitinase, 1 shot of Dismutase and 1 shot of Catalase (1st, 2nd and 4th chemicals) and there you have it. Now look for a yellow toolbox and find a Towel. Combine it with the chemical and use the resulting red rag on the dirty painting.

The Mona Lisa UV

Light Puzzle As you hold the UV light up against the Mona Lisa you will see cryptic lettering. Highlight every letter individually and then a keyboard will appear. The answer to the cryptic clue is: "DA VINVI PAINTED THOSE THAT KNEW BETWEEN BACCHUS AND URIEL LIES THE CLUE".

Answer to the Puzzle "OH LAME SAINT" It's an anagram and the answer to the puzzle "OH LAME SAINT" is: "THE MONA LISA".

Level 7 Cryptogram

Answer The answer is: "OUTDOORS THE GRACEFUL WATER YOU WILL SEE THROUGH DEDICATION YOU MUST FIND THE KEY".
