

30 October 2007

By: Monica Gaza, Entertainment News Editor

The Spice Girls sure know how to make their money

The Spice Girls Will Star in Raunchy Victoria's Secret Campaign? I Sure Hope So...

It's about time they took those clothes off...

The Spice Girls are definitely five girls on a mission, and part of that mission (just how big a part, you decide) is to get as much money as possible into their bank accounts. The reunited girl group (made up of Victoria Beckham, Mel B, Emma Bunton, Mel C and Geri Halliwell) have turned their upcoming reunion world tour into a huge money spinner. And now, just to cap it all, we're told that there may be such a thing as a Spice Girls sexy photo shoot happening very soon, possibly even before November 15th. The Spice Girls are said to be in talks to pose in Victoria's Secret underwear ahead of their performance at the company's fashion event next month. However, the band are said to be terrified about stripping down to their lingerie and have been doing their best (read that exercising and dieting) to make sure they live up to their "spicy" reputation. A source said: "The girls are working out like crazy to ensure they look sexy. The shoot will feature each girl wearing lingerie appropriate to their Spice Girls nickname." Now that definitely sounds interesting. I mean yes, I agree, it's good to have lots of money, but we'll definitely appreciate getting something a little more interesting in return. The photos are said to be released on November 15, just before the Victoria's Secret Fashion Show at Hollywood's Kodak Theater. During the show, the girls (who will be performing as a five-piece for the first time since Geri quit in May 1998) will sing the new song "Headlines" as well as an old track, thought to be "Say You'll Be There". The source added: "They wanted one old and one new. But they may still change their minds about the old one." It was recently revealed the band are selling their new album exclusively through Victoria's Secret. The group have signed a whopping £5 million deal to make their greatest hits LP only available in the US at outlets of the underwear giant, which, I must say, is quite a deal and will ensure them a whole lot of extra publicity. Victoria's Secret will also offer fans a special limited-edition box set, which will include charm bracelets, a karaoke DVD, postcards and posters.