

28 November 2006

By: Iohana Georgescu, Communications News Editor

The Stylish Nokia 6300 Unveiled at the Annual Capital Market Place

Expected to begin shipping in the first quarter of 2007

Today, at Nokia's annual Capital Market Place, the new and long awaited Nokia 6300 was presented. Well proportioned and with a clean-cut candybar design, Nokia 6300 has a series of user friendly features, as well as an ergonomic keymat and an easy to use menu. It is equipped with a 2 megapixel camera with 8x of digital zoom, an Mp3 player and FM Radio, USB/PC Synchronization and features a MicroSD card slot with support for up to 2GB cards. Designed to be appealing both as looks and as features, Nokia 6300 sports a 2 inch QVGA screen described as being crisp and detailed, and also has features such as voice dialing, voice commands and voice recording. Therefore, Nokia 6300 is a blend between the technical specifications that are a must for today's mobile phone user and the highly desirable, sophisticated look that Nokia was going for when designing this handset. Only 13.1 mm thick and weighing 91 grams, the Nokia 6300 has a talk time of up to 3.5 hours and a standby time of up to 14 days. The Nokia 6300 is expected to be released on the market during the first quarter of 2007 and will have an estimated price tag of 250 euros before subsidies or taxes.