

25 January 2006

By: Adina Gheorghe, Entertainment Editor

This Time Is for Real: J.Lo and Marc Anthony Cherish the Diva's Pregnancy

The married couple has been spotted lately buying all kind of baby supplies

Jennifer Lopez has reportedly visited a baby clinic lately and on this behalf she has started sparking rumors that she's pregnant. However, speculations about Jennifer expecting her first child with third husband Marc Anthony have been all over the entertainment gossipers after being spotted at the pregnancy clinic and also in an extravagant baby wear shop with Marc. The couple has recently been seen stocking up on baby supplies. For example, Anthony was spotted buying a Guys Infant Gear nappy bag for $120 at swanky celebrity shopping spot Fred Segal in Los Angeles just last week. A witness at the store tells website msnbc.com that "He said something that made it pretty clear that it wasn't a gift - that he intended to use it." Lo has made no secret of her desire to start a family with Marc and last month it was claimed she was praying to God to bless her with a child. "I want a baby as soon as I can. A baby would just be so perfect," the "Monster-in-Law" star said. It is said that the beautiful actress/singer created a shrine at her Long Island home whose pride of place is a 17-inch Lady of Guadalupe - Mexico's Virgin Mary. According to friends, J-Lo has been spending every night lighting a candle in honor of the Virgin and praying to get pregnant. And it seems it has already worked!