TV receiver offers HD quality picture on your Mac

The folks at equinix have released the smallest TubeStick DTT USB receiver that offers you live TV on a Mac. More compact than ever, TubeStick also provides everything you need to watch TV on the go.

"The original TubeStick shook up the market for digital TV receivers for Macs," says equinix. "With the new mini TubeStick we've taken it to the next level. Watch digital Freeview (DTT) in up to high definition (HD) quality on your Mac."

Only 53.5 mm in size, the new TubeStick is one of the smallest TV USB receivers available for Mac. Thanks to the latest chip technology, the mini TubeStick also delivers better picture quality, and more brilliant colors through first class reception, according to its makers.

The small dimensions of only 53.5 x 20 x 10 millimeters complement Apple's streamlined computers, both portable and the all-in-one desktop solution, the iMac. However, "the newest TubeStick [is] the ideal companion for mobile use," says equinix. "All you need is the USB receiver, the bar antenna and The Tube, the modern TV software for Mac OS X." The Tube can be downloaded right here on Softpedia.
