Vin Diesel - Not Gay, Just Not Willing to Expose His Private Life

The action star is not going to parade his romantic interests for the sake of the press

He is the ultimate Hollywood action hero, the biggest hardbody America adored since Arnold Schwarzenegger yet he is very positive about keeping his private (love) life away from the public. The recent gossips and rumors he was gay appeared subsequently to his silence regarding any love affairs. The actor dismissed the rumors and declared: "I'm not gonna put it out there on a magazine cover like some other actors. I come from the Harrison Ford, Marlon Brando, Robert De Niro, Al Pacino code of silence." So be it. His latest movie, Find Me Guilty is soon to be released. And in director's Sidney Lumet movie his fans will be able to see the bald and bold action super star... with hair!!! Leaving that aside, the movie is about a mobster (Giacomo 'Fat Jack' DiNorscio played by Diesel) who defends himself in a never ending trial. The facts presented in the movie are part of real time history, as DiNorscio's trial is the longest one to take place in the U.S. For the part Diesel had to quit his daily training routine and gain weight. He also had to get some hair. The actor stated: "I sat in a room for weeks doing nothing; just eating and becoming my character. For me to go that long without working out, and not having the body that I built my identity around, drove me pretty close to crazy for a while. But it was fun walking around... parading my gut for the cast."
