

23 May 2008

By: Florin Troaca, Communications News Editor

Sony Ericsson W910i
Def Jam Edition
Sony Ericsson /
Carphone Warehouse
/ Def Jam

Win a Sony Ericsson W910i Def Jam Phone

The white-gold limited edition of W910i can be yours for free

In case you didn't know that there is a Sony Ericsson W910i Def Jam limited edition handset on the market, well, there is. It comes in white, with golden margins, exclusively from Carphone Warehouse, and now you have the chance to win one. The RWD magazine from the UK came up with a contest that will allow some lucky fellas to get their hands on a Def Jam golden edition of the high-end Walkman phone. All you have to do is answer the following question: which singer released the "Goldigga" hit? You can choose from Jay-Z, Kanye West and Chingy, and if you like the music Def Jam is promoting, you should have no trouble giving the correct answer. For more info on how you can participate in the contest, visit RWD's website, found at this address. Released in the UK about a month ago, the white-gold Def Jam special edition of Sony Ericsson W910i brings exclusive content from the famous hip-hop label. The handset is pre-loaded with no less than 6 videos: Mariah Carey - "Touch My Body", Fabolous - "Make Me Better", Chingy - "Gimmie Dat", Rick Ross - "The Boss", Ne-Yo - "Do You" and Rocko - "Ummo Do Me". Moreover, the Def-Jammed W910i features eight songs in MP3 format, including: Rihanna and Ne-Yo - "Hate That I Love You", Janet Jackson - "Rock with U", Mariah Carey - "We Belong Together", Nas - "Hip Hop Is Dead" and others. In case you were wondering, the limited edition of the W910i handset can be bought (at this address) with a contract from either O2 or Orange and it doesn't seem to be available in any European country other than the UK. It can be found in China though, but only with the gold and white case, as the Def Jam content is missing - I guess Chinese people are not that much into hip-hop.